

One of the most enjoyable rally roads we've seen, with a great rhythm and helpful camber on many sections, and very few hazards. The first 3.5 miles are a steady, twisty climb, followed by a long and varied run through the woods on surfaces that are a bit looser (depending on how recently they were graded). A campground and cabins are located between mile 8.8 and 9.7 miles. After another gentler climb, the final section twists down harder-packed roads to a finish above Anderson Ranch Reservoir.
